The Master in Classical Archaeology (the only one of this kind in Spain) is a joint program of the Rovira i Virgili University (URV), the Autonomous University of Barcelona (UAB) and the Catalan Institute of Classical Archaeology (ICAC).

This master's degree focuses on the study of ancient Mediterranean societies and offers students a methodological and specific training in the main research topics in protohistoric, Greek-Roman and late antiquity archaeology.

Within the program, there are three priority research lines that the student will have the opportunity to explore with basic, methodological, technological and advanced training.

1. Landscape Archaeology and Territory Studies.
2. Archaeology of Ancient Architecture, Cities and Settlements.
3. Archaeology of Material Culture and Artistic Productions.
