Cultur-Monts holds its fourth working meeting in Le Mont-Dore (France)

From 13 to 16 October, the fourth working meeting of the CulturMonts project takes place in Le Mont-Dore, located in the department of Puy-de-Dôme (France).

During these days, the CulturMonts international team will combine the internal work sessions of the 3 WGs with field trips to discover the tangible and intangible heritage of the Massif du Sancy and the archaeological remains from the Roman period in the municipality of Le Mont-Dore. The field visits will focus on water, stone and pastoralism themes.

The meeting aims to learn in detail about the characteristics of the mountain cultural landscapes of the French Massif Central pilot window, which will work in the Sancy and Lozère areas.

The conference program focuses on methodologies for enhancing a unique heritage such as the 'tras', linked to livestock farming in the mid-mountains and the production of the famous Saint-Nectaire cheese. As well as on the ways of heritage enhancement of the thermal archaeology of Le Mont-Dore, characterised by monumental remains from the Roman period scattered throughout the various buildings and sites of the municipality.
